

INTRODUCTION

This report provides results from the General Division of the Common Pleas Court's Access and Fairness Public Survey that was conducted from July 20, 2015 to August 17, 2015.

Many assume that "winning" and "losing" is what matters most to citizens when dealing with the courts. Yet research consistently shows public trust and confidence is shaped more by a person's perceptions of how they are treated in court, and whether the court makes decisions fairly. This measure provides a tool for surveying court users including attorneys and parties to litigation.

Using the survey instrument designed by the NCSC (National Center for State Courts), the project team, over the course of several weeks, surveyed people exiting the courthouse on the condition they had completed their business with the court that day.

A total of 651 individuals responded to the survey. However, on any given question, a number of people did not respond. This information is presented at the top of each section of the survey. Each person surveyed had experience with the court and its services. Court users were asked to respond to a series of questions relating to access to justice and the fairness of the judicial process. Responses were made using a five-level Likert scale. The responses went from (1) Strongly Disagree, (2) Disagree, (3) Neither agree or Disagree, (4) Agree, (5) Strongly Agree, (N/A) Not Applicable. The survey also included questions relating to the background and demographics of the respondents. No information was requested that allowed the court to identify the respondent (e.g. name, case number, etc.); thus, responses could not influence the outcome of a respondent's legal matter and confidentiality is preserved.

Please note that the data below does include some respondents' experiences with other Divisions of the Common Pleas Court (i.e. Domestic Relations, Juvenile and Probate Courts) and with the Cleveland Municipal Court. In total, from the 525 individuals who responded to question 5 in Section III, 199 responses were from individuals who came to court for reasons other than a case in the General Division of the Common Pleas Court. An effort was made to minimize the collection of data from individuals appearing in other courts other than Adult Probation or Common Pleas Court, but in some instances that was not possible. It is valid to say that if survey respondents had a bad experience in another court, it could have negatively impacted the numbers for the other questions in the survey.

The report highlights the data collected which will be used to examine the Court's continued efforts to ensure equal access and quality services to the public. If resources are available, this report will be updated on an annual basis.

OVERVIEW OF ACCESS AND FAIRNESS SURVEY

CUYAHOGA COUNTY COMMON PLEAS COURT

DEFINITION

Ratings of court users on the court’s accessibility and its treatment of customers in terms of fairness, equality, and respect

PURPOSE

Many assume that “winning” or “losing” is what matters most to citizens when dealing with the courts.

However, research consistently shows that positive perceptions of court experience are shaped more by court users’ perceptions of how they are treated in court, and whether the court’s process of making decisions seems fair.

This measure provides a tool for surveying all court users about their experience in the courthouse. Comparison of results by location, division, type of customer, and across courts can inform court management practices.

Designed to demonstrate the quality of service delivery, these survey results foster consensus on what the court should strive to achieve and the success in meeting objectives in a world of limited resources.

SURVEY DATA [7/20/2015 — 8/17/2015]

The following data was gathered by a survey of visitors of the court. Included in this survey are visitors of the Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court and Adult Probation.

Ten questions were asked to visitors about court access. The responses went from (1) Strongly Disagree, (2) Disagree, (3) Neither Agree or (4) Agree, (5) Strongly Agree, (N/A) Not Applicable.

100-Point Scale Method for Presenting Survey Results:

Employing a 100-point scale to present survey results is useful particularly for displaying the results within the familiar and intuitive 100-point scale.

In order to convert the survey results for each survey statement to a 100-point scale, the following calculations are made: the number of persons who responded to the statement is multiplied by the 100-point scores corresponding to the Likert scale responses made by those persons (e.g., the number of persons responding with an “Agree” response is multiplied by 80, the number of persons responding with a “Disagree” response is multiplied by 40, and so on); then the sum of the converted 100-point scores for each statement is divided by the total number of persons responding to the statement.

Result scores greater than 80 on this scale indicate the court is “doing a good job.” Result scores over 70, but under 80 indicate the court is “doing okay.” Result scores under 70 indicate the court “needs improvement.”

100-Point Scale Conversion

Overall Scale

1	2	3	4	5
Strongly Disagree	Disagree	Neither Agree or Disagree	Agree	Strongly Agree
20	40	60	80	100

100 point scale makes it easier to interpret results

- > 80 Doing a good job
- > 70 < 80 Doing OK
- < 70 Needs improvement
